“ I had Beth Lyn on my mind lately and decided to see where she was lately and how she was doing - so I went to the Google to see if I could find her . And, I did. But much to my surprise I see we lost her. I worked with her at Palm Beach Life magazine many years ago - and visited her in Sarasota and got to see her loving life in Sarasota. What a beautiful soul and spirit! I must say, I have never met anyone like Beth. She was certainly meant for great things in her life! And, she humbly met with that destiny. I don't have any other contact to let them know how loved she was by a bunch of people here in Palm Beach county. Much love and solace to you all. If anyone reads this and can get back with me I would love it! I will leave my email. But, in the meantime, I kiss the world as it flies by and send a heartfelt "Beth" smile and love. “ Yesterday, as the sun came up, I spent a moment reflecting on the loss I share. An owl joined me, standing still and not 10 ft. from me. She looked directly at me. As we looked at each other, I saw in her eyes a beautiful canary with a gypsy soul. The canary was in a gilded cage. As the door opened, she flew out singing. I believe it was Beth. The owl blinked, ruffled its feathers, and flew off.

How beautiful. While I did not know her, as I read the obituary, I could almost 'see' the love she had for life. She sounded like a very wise and special person. And the Owl? I believe.

My condolences.
