“Caye was my neighbor and always loved a great hug. We both wear hearing aids so some of the conversations took a little extra effort but they were always worth it. Whenever I walked my dogs, if she was outside, she would stop to chat about life and the Lord. Her enthusiasm was contagious and she always had a little pep in her step. She also had a great sense of style and I would often see her coming back from church looking sharp. We would talk about the impending rapture and how excited we were to meet Jesus in person some day. After Joe passed, I could tell she was slowing a bit and I didn't realize until today that she had passed away. My mother-in-law passed on that week as well so we were understandably preoccupied. I am so excited that she is finally home and is resting peacefully. This world was full of trials and she deserves all of the wonder Heaven has to offer. Until we meet again!

“Faye and I along with our siblings grew up in eastern Kentucky, later we ended up in Michigan, here we both raised our children they played together and I'm happy to say they're till friends. Sadly Caye lost 5 of her adult children.,that's more grief than a mother should have to bare, but she did so that shows you what a strong woman she was.Rest in peace Caye we love and miss you.Your Sister

“Caye was one of the most strongest women I have ever known whom I loved dearly. Our families grew up together so for over 60+ years we have been connected, but not in distance. She & my mother were close friends and i remain close to this day with her daughter Beverly & son-in-law Rick. Caye spread your wings because I know God has a special place for you. You will be greatly missed by all of your friends & family. I love you!! Brenda
