“ We have talked about George and his larger-than-life personality, Fran, but I just wanted to share with everyone that reads this, memories that I have of George. We would go to a casino about a mile away, and both going and coming, we would listen to old music, testing our knowledge of song titles, as well as singers. More than once, George would sing along. For anyone who was never lucky enough to hear George sing, you missed a beautiful voice. On these trips, we would also have long talks about our memories of life. I enjoyed this so much. George only spoke of good times in his life, many of the stories told with humor, laughing all the while with that booming laugh of his. George was a wonderful neighbor and friend here in Frankfort, Kentucky, and remained a true friend all of his life. I will miss you, George. You were one of the best people I ever had the pleasure of knowing.
