August 3, 1943 - August 1, 2025

Pamela Eleanor Stinchcomb (née Priest), age 81, passed away on August 1, 2025, in Venice, Florida.

Born on August 3, 1943, in San Diego, California, Pamela spent her early years in Wisconsin before moving to Kansas City, Kansas. She attended Southwest High School and later pursued higher education at the University of Kansas.

Pamela was preceded in death by her beloved husband, Harold Stinchcomb. She is survived by her daughter, Sherry Tyrrell Stapleton, her brother, William Priest, her stepson William Stinchcomb, and many cousins throughout Wisconsin.

A gifted artist with a deep appreciation for nature, Pamela found joy and inspiration in painting. Her artwork often featured birds and wildlife—subjects she held dear and captured with remarkable detail and sensitivity. Her paintings reflected not only her technical skill but also her reverence for the natural world.

Pamela's love for animals extended beyond the canvas. She shared a special bond with her cherished dog, Nina, who also passed away earlier this year. Their companionship brought her great comfort and joy.

Pamela's memory will live on through those who knew and loved her. May her legacy of beauty and kindness continue to inspire all who were touched by her life.
