Peter Edgar Shrope, age 87, died November 12, 2018. His children, grandchildren, family and friends will dearly miss his storytelling, sharp wit and generous heart. He taught his children and grandchildren to work hard, be kind and open-minded. He was born in Newark, New Jersey on March 29, 1931, the first child of Edgar and Jane Shrope. Pete and Pat had many adventures traveling during their retirement years. Pete was a civil engineer and 1952 graduate of the University of Vermont. In his early years he was a design engineer on the USS Albacore submarine in Portsmouth, New Hampshire and a field surveyor on many projects in and around southern New York. He managed budgets for statewide projects for the New York State Office of the Budget in Albany for ten years, before moving to New Jersey to become a partner with Vollmer Associates, an engineering/architectural firm in Manhattan where he worked for 25 years. “ My Heart hurts thinking I will never be able to spend time with you either at "home", on the golf course, or just a casual ride about town. You were an amazing step- "dad" and I will miss you and your kindness everyday. The love and respect you provided to my mother was extreme and for that, I thank you. Forever in my heart.
